Confusion reigns over road transfer

The County Roads Committee has become the centre of much confusion and debate in recent weeks as councillors argue who is to take the initiative in turning township roads over to the county roads system.

Councillors from Snowdon and Minden townships have asked the county to assume both the Irondale and Bobcaygeon roads in recent months, but it is still not clear who is to pay for the study that is needed to determine whether the roads meet county criteria. Councillors from other municipalities, meanwhile, are arguing that neither road is mentioned in the county roads needs study and that the road committee may be biting off more than it can chew in entertaining the municipalities' requests.

Minden Deputy Reeve Doug Pritchard told a meeting of county council last week that the county has said it will pay for the study on the Bobcaygeon road, but County Engineer, Bill Obee has since stressed that the study is the responsibility of the municipality. He added that even if the road is found to meet criteria for county status, it is still no guarantee that the county will assume the road.

"The Ministry of Transportation will not let the county assume any township road unless a classification study is done," Obee said in an interview Tuesday. "If the study says that the road meets county classification and gives the township a basis for negotiating, but it is still no guarantee that the road will be taken up by the county," Obee also said that the cost of the study must definitely be borne by the municipality.

Both Snowdon and Minden township councils have received letters from Obee indicating that the study will cost between $400 and $600. Obee told The Times

Dysart, Snowdon withdraw appeals

Snowdon and Dysart townships have withdrawn their appeals to the Ontario Municipal Board over county apportionment, and county council is now preparing to send a delegation to Queen's Park in an effort to secure an increase in apportionment guarantee grants for the two municipalities.

Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey told a meeting of county council last week that Dysart would consider withdrawing its appeal if the county would agree to support the municipal affairs to reinstate apportionment guarantee grants at last year's levels. Dysart's grant was reduced roughly $12,000 to $26,000 this year, and Snowdon's grant slipped to an estimated $2,000 from $3,400. The two municipalities, meanwhile, have both been hit by increase in their apportionment of county budget of $24,267 and $3,390 respectively.

According to Dysart Clerk-

that the estimate is based on figures provided by the consulting firm of Totten, Simms and Hubicki. Pritchard told the county session that Anson, Hindon and Minden received word that the county would conduct the study but Roads Committee Chairman Keith Tallman quickly denied the Administrator Wayne Wood, Dysart council reached a decision to withdraw its appeal at a meeting May 18. Fearrey told The Times Tuesday that Dysart is hopeful the move to withdraw the appeal will ultimately save the county and its municipality's money. "We feel we're not getting a fair apportionment now, but we're hopeful we can get monies we lost in grants through talks with the Ministry. We won't be spending county and municipal money to do it. It has never been our intention to hurt other municipalities over the apportionment issue," Fearrey said.

County Clerk-Treasurer Win Lahay confirmed reports that she is seeking an appointment with Minister of Municipal Affairs Claude Bennett on behalf of Fearrey and Warden Ron Gambell. Lahay told The Times Tuesday that she talked with charge, saying "we certainly don't do studies on any roads."

Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey, meanwhile, told county council that there were already more roads identified in the roads needs study than the county had time to consider, and that the Roads Committee has a huge backlog of jurisdictional changes to consider as a result. "We've got enough roads in the needs study now that will never get done. Rather than letting municipalities plug roads into the system, we should let the county decide which ones to consider," Fearrey said.

The needs study was conducted by the county in 1968 to identify potential roads for the county road system being established at the time, and to establish a list of priorities for assuming township roads. The county has recently begun assuming roads identified in the study after stopping the practice for several years to clear up a backlog.

County Warden Ron Gambell agreed with Fearrey's statements about county initiative: "We're not going out beating the county for roads," Gambell told the council during debate on the roads issue. "We've received suggestions from two municipalities and we're entertaining them, that's all," he said.

According to Obee, the studies pending on the Irondale and Bobcaygeon roads will consider a number of factors, including the zoning of area served by the road, its traffic volume and the population density of surrounding areas. If the road meets any one of the MTC's criteria, it is eligible to be considered for assumption into the county system, he said.

Minden core study starts this Thursday

Later this week a team of four architects and two architectural students will spend an intensive four day period studying the problems of the downtown area of Minden. By Monday morning the group hopes to have developed a program of redevelopment that could form a framework for the community for years to come.

The study, which has been commissioned by the Minden Business Improvement Area (BIA) is offered to communities throughout the province working out of the Minden council chambers. For the weekend the area will be turned into an architect's office with drafting boards, light tables, projector and other equipment installed. From this work base, the team will make forays into the community, studying problems in various areas, then returning to the office to prepare solutions.

According to Monk, the architects could be working through the night on the project as they attempt to by the Ontario Association of Architects. Through the group, architects and students donate their time to help a community design plans for future development. The sponsoring body, in this case the Minden BIA, must cover the group's expenses including food, lodging and transportation.

According to Gord Monk, chairman of the BIA, the organization has set aside $3000 to cover the cost of the study, but he doesn't expect the costs to exceed $2000. "We have been fortunate to obtain much of the equipment we need on a loan basis. Many local businesses and institutions, including the high school, have offered material assistance," Monk commented.

The architects will be prepare a detailed report in a four day period.

A representative of the architectural association visited Minden last week to meet with the BIA directors. He said he was pleased with the arrangements made for the team and indicated the members are looking forward to carrying out the project in Minden. "This is the smallest community we have studied," association representative Jack Klein stated. "In many ways this will offer the greatest challenge. We realize the resources are limited here and hopefully the team can come up with a report that will be within the reach of the local community."

The team arrives in the community Thursday.

Downtown study

Following luncheon with the township council, they will be taken on a tour of the area. Thursday evening the BIA has planned an open house at the Minden Community Centre to give merchants and citizens an opportunity to meet with the architects.

"We hope this meeting will give the residents an opportunity to discuss their concerns with the architects. This meeting will provide an important basis from which they will construct their report," Monk commented. While invitations have been issued to specific individuals in the township to attend this meeting, it is open to the public and everyone is invited to meet the architects.

"This CAUSE study, as it is known, was one of the main reasons for the creation of the BIA," Monk commented earlier this week. "I'm very excited that it is about to take place and I sense a growing enthusiasm among BIA members, the public and the architects about the study," he commented.

Monk noted that the findings of the team will be presented at a special meeting planned for Monday at 10:30 a.m. "After working all weekend, they will deliver their report at a public meeting planned for the council chambers."

"We are indeed fortunate," Monk commented. "We are getting a report that would normally cost $20,000 or more, and we're getting it within four days, where normally we could expect it to take several months to be completed."

The four architects taking part in the study include Glen Hadley of Toronto, Takvor Hopyan of Willowdale, Julian Jacobs of Toronto and Carl Knipfel of Scarborough. The two students are Tim Fyles of Carleton University in Ottawa and David Northcote of the University of Waterloo. Jack Klein will act as liaison between the BIA and the study team.

Appeals withdrawn

Ministry representatives late last week, and that a potential meeting over apportionment grants is being discussed at ministry offices today (Wednesday).

Snowdon Reeve Bob Vick, who announced Snowdon's withdrawal at county council last week, said Tuesday that his municipality "never at any time intended to go too far with the appeal." Vick said that Snowdon's grant request will be taken up by the county delegation when it meets with ministry officials.

Catholic trustee will be elected next November

Ratepayers in a Separate School zone in Bicroft and Cardiff will soon have representation on the Haliburton County Board of Education. County Council is preparing a by-law to allow the district of Bicroft to elect a school board trustee at its next election.

Children in Bicroft, Monmouth and Harcourt are currently being taken by bus to Bancroft for primary education at a Roman Catholic School. The Haliburton Board of Education in turn pays the county of Hastings for busing and tuition. According to Director of Education, Doug Hodgson, the expenditure constitutes a Separate School expense, and therefore ratepayers in the Separate School zone are entitled to representation on the Board.

County Clerk-Treasurer, Win Lahay told The Times that the Board will most likely expand from 14 to 15 members to accommodate the Separate School zone trustee, who will be elected in municipal elections this fall.

The issue of separate school representation first arose at county council in November 1980, when a motion was passed stating that the council would consider redetermination of the Board of Education on or before June 1, 1982, to allow time for Bicroft to prepare for the election of a school board trustee in fall elections. Clerk-treasurer Lahay says she expects the by-law authorizing the new board structure to be ready for council's endorsement by the June meeting.

Lahay has also said that the new board member must reside in the county and be a Roman Catholic. It is expected that the new member will also be a ratepayer in the Separate School zone.

Snowdon Reeve Bob Vick, questioned the proposed change during a report from Lahay at the Wednesday session of council. "I was of the opinion that people in the Separate School zone should have a member on the Hastings Board of Education instead of here," Vick said, adding that there is no Roman Catholic school in Haliburton County. Lahay responded to Vick by saying that part of every school tax assessment goes toward provision for separate school education and that where there is no Catholic school, the funds are allocated for busing. Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey added that "all school supporters are paying a portion of their taxes to send children to the separate school in Bancroft." Fearrey added that the new member will not represent a fiscal change to the Board of Education.

Children in the Separate School zone attend the Catholic school until grade eight. The county also buys education from the Hastings Board of Education for the students of the public secondary school in Bancroft.

Red tape strangles office

At Lutterworth Township office, things are piling up. It seems that back records stored at the municipal building have accumulated to such a degree that Clerk-Treasurer Wayne Hughes has only one box left to store old records, and Hughes told council at its regular meeting last Thursday that unless something is done, the municipality will run out of room altogether.

The obvious solution to the problem would be to destroy some of the old records. Hughes confided to council Thursday that in all likelihood, 50-year-old dog tag receipts could be destroyed without threatening the efficiency of the municipality's book-keeping system.

But before Hughes can take the step to eradicate the waste products of bureaucracy, yet another piece of red tape must be added to the growing pile; a new by-law. It seems that Lutterworth can not legally destroy old documents without a by-law authorizing itself to do so. Because of his foresight, though, Hughes is already preparing to take that legally necessary step: he's received a sample by-law from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs to aid him in drawing up one for Lutterworth.

Now if Mr. Hughes can just find enough space to store the sample by-law, the council's resolution passing the new one and the document itself before the township office bursts at the seams, Lutterworth may yet deliver itself from the ravages of red tape.

Soyers Lake group airs by-law beefs

Representatives from Anson, Hindon and Minden Council met Sunday with members of the Soyers Lake Ratepayers' Association to hear concerns about the new zoning by-law, and while several strong objections were voiced, both sides finished the meeting optimistic about the document's fate at Ontario Municipal Board hearings.

Reeve Lloyd Walker, Deputy Reeve Doug Pritchard and councillors Ed Pergolas and Lyle McKnight met with the group at its annual meeting Sunday at the Pine-Stone Inn. During the two and a half hour session, council representatives listened to a formal presentation of five objections to the by-law, most of which concerned lakeshore frontage in the three residential zones.

The 25 metre frontage in lots zoned R3 led the list of objections raised at the meeting. Reeve Walker told the group that the 25 metre frontage was a "mistake", saying it was due to be corrected at the final Ontario Municipal Board hearing on the document. He added that under planned revisions to the document, all three residential zones will have a common lakeshore frontage of 40 metres, or 132 feet.

Despite the concession on R3 frontage, however, the Soyers Lake group repeated its view that lakeshore frontage in all zones should be set at a minimum of 150 to 200 feet, and that the group "strongly resents" councils action in ignoring the recommendation by passing the by-law. Association president,

Mr. McCorriston told councillors, "Our association has always advocated a minimum frontage of 150 feet for lakeshore lots; we have voiced that opinion often."

Some members did state, however, that they felt the 132 foot frontage was satisfactory.

McCorriston also quoted zoning designations in the Dysart by-law, pointing out that the Seasonal Residential zones and the Rural zone allowed frontages of 150, 125 and 200 feet respectively.

Councillor Ed Pergolas told the group that Minden council had considered a Seasonal Residential zone for the townships, but that there was strong opposition to the idea. He added that the seasonal residential zone would entail restrictions to Four members of Anson, Hindon and Minden attended the annual meeting of the Soyers Lake Ratepayers Association. They fielded questions on the township's new zoning by-law and other municipal matters.

residency in the zones. Councillor Lyle McKnight added that certificates of occupancy, which are required by Dysart municipality before a cottager can take up permanent residence in a seasonally zoned dwelling, were suspected of being illegal by the consultants who prepared the Minden zoning by-law, and that they therefore advised against establishing a seasonal designation for residential zones.

Besides the issues of lake frontage, the Soyers Lake group told councillors that they saw no reason for establishing three distinct residential zones, and that they would prefer to see all residential zones incorporated in a single zone. Both Pergolas and McKnight pointed out, however, that the zones were established in order to control permitted uses of different lots. McKnight told the group that the Ministry of Housing stipulates that lots not located on a publicly maintained road must fall under a zoning different from those lots that do abutt a municipal road.

The Soyers Lake Association ended the session by appointing McCorriston to represent the association at Minden council and any Ontario Municipal Board hearings on the by-law. McKnight told the group, however, that their objections could probably be resolved without the group presenting formal objections to the OMB.

Cultural centre sound says Wrightman

While Minden council contemplates taking steps to rectify structural problems at the Library/Cultural Centre, the man who built it claims that it is entirely sound, and that councils' plans for the building are "harebrained and irresponsible".

Ronald Wrightman of Wrightman Realty in Minden built the centre for the municipality as owner of Confederation Log Homes, a company he has since sold. Wrightman now says that, contrary to a report made to Minden council last week by the chairman of the building's co-ordinating committee there has been no shrinkage of the logs and cracks in the caulking are due to the municipality's negligence in maintaining the building.

According to Wrightman, who contacted The Times following an article on problems at the centre published last week, the silicone caulking in place at the centre now was intended to be replaced by a permanent hypolon rubber caulking when the building was treated with a final coat of stain. But, Wrightman says, council never applied the stain to the building after it was completed, a move which has caused stress and separation at dovetail joints, and displaced the silicone caulking.

"The municipality was well aware that the caulking was temporary," Wrightman said in an interview Friday. "Caulking maintenance is a normal part of maintaining a log building for its entire life, they've been told this."

Wrightman said.

Wrightman also explained that the stain, which should have been applied to the exterior walls last spring, contains an ultraviolet reflector that helps prevent the logs cracking. The present cracking at dovetail joints is partly due to council's decision not to use the stain, Wrightman said.

Wrightman says that he did treat the building with two coats of Pentox, a clear finish that does not contain the reflector, when he learned council did not intend to use the darker stain.

Wrightman also claims that fears about rotting of foundation timbers are unfounded, and that leakage around the foundation could be prevented by proper maintenance of caulking at the concrete foundation slab. Wrightman says that the slab, which was designed originally for a cement block building, expands and contracts at a different rate than the timbers, and creates problems for the caulking as a result. He also added that there are two major cracks in the foundation slab that run its entire width. Wrightman claims the faults have caused interior drywall to crack as much as three feet from the floor.

Minden Reeve Lloyd Walker is now investigating the possibility of placing an asphalt or concrete apron around the building to force water to run away from the foundation timber. Wrightman says, however, that the asphalt scheme simply will not work. "Asphalt is not water proof; not only will it look hideous, but it simply won't keep water out. It's an irresponsible, harebrained scheme. I've explained to them that it won't work." He also claims that while council is prepared to spend $3,000 for the apron, he could personally replace all caulking in both the joints and the foundation for $300.

Wrightman has also spoken out against the possibility of using creosote injections to prevent rotting of foundation timber. According to Wrightman, the idea, which was outlined in the presentation made to Minden council last week, would cause seepage that could discolour interior walls and floors, cause deterioration of caulking between the tongue and groove joints between timbers and evaporate the asphalt vapour barrier between the timbers and the concrete slab.

Canoe mishap claims life

A Toronto man has become the county's first drowning victim of the 1982 summer season.

Antonio Minichillo, 20, drowned while canoeing with three companions on Glamor Lake near Gooderham.

The mishap occurred Saturday afternoon.

According to the police, Minichillo was boating on the lake with his friends when the craft overturned approximately 35 metres from an island. The three were rescued by a nearby cottager, but Minichillo, a non-swimmer, slipped beneath the surface.

Divers from the Ontario Provincial Police recovered the body of the man several hours later. An autopsy was ordered and held Sunday at the Civic Hospital in Peterborough.

The matter is being investigated by Constable Boyd Jarvis and Corporal Steven Adam.

Not welcome here

Minden was the target of an invasion during the weekend and, although the community appears to have emerged unscathed, this area's reputation as a popular recreation destination could suffer if it is repeated.

We are referring to the large number of motorcycle club members who descended on the village Saturday. Their presence in such large numbers created an atmosphere that clashed sharply with the usually relaxed, easy-going mood of the community on the Victoria Day Weekend.

The motorcycle club members, as far as we could determine, did not do anything out of line while in Minden. However, their sheer numbers and the fact they congregated in one prominent location created a situation in which the residents and regular visitors felt intimidated by their presence.

The police were aware of the disturbing influence of the gang members, and, with additional manpower from area detachments, kept a close watch on their activities.

Their presence here this weekend and in the future, in the numbers witnessed Saturday, could prove to be a serious blow to the attractiveness of this community.

The motorcycle gang members represent a way of life and set of values totally alien to this community.

Every effort should be made to let these people know they are not welcome here.

A starting point

Minden downtown merchants are making a major commitment to redevelopment in the core area of the community this weekend. After more than a year of debate, discussion and controversy, a detailed study of Minden's downtown will be carried out by a team of architects. The program is sponsored here by the merchants through the Business Improvement Area and with the co-operation of the Ontario Association of Architects.

The value of the study, which will see four architects and architectural students give the downtown close scrutiny, we believe rests not in the findings, but in how the merchants and municipality react to the final report. The CAUSE study, as it is known, is not an end, but rather a starting point. Its value lies, not in what it says, but what is done with the results.

We wish the community well on what could be a starting point for a new Minden.

Budget penalizes the poor

- by John Eakins, M.P.P. -

Many calls and letters are beginning to flood my office by people upset with the Miller budget.

The budget tabled in the Ontario Legislature by Treasurer Frank Miller will make life more difficult for thousands of Ontario citizens and fails miserably to recognize the most serious and fundamental problems facing Ontario today.

The Miller budget ignores the plight of the many homeowners whose mortgages come up for renewal this year. It ignores the plight of the many small businessmen who are operating near or below the break-even point. It ignores the plight of the farmers who face modern day record numbers of bankruptcies. It ignores the plight of the unemployed.

The Miller budget punishes citizens at the lower end of the income scale - the poor, the elderly on fixed incomes - by removing a large number of sales tax exemptions. It extracts a disproportionate share of their incomes for government spending programmes.

Increased OHIP premiums also strike hardest at those who can least defend themselves.

The Miller budget is also a disaster for municipalities and school boards, forcing them into deficit positions. Obviously they will either have to cut programmes or increase property taxes.

The Miller budget poses a threat to Ontario's hospitals, universities, colleges and other institutions by warning them that this government will continue to underfund basic requirements.

And it fails to acknowledge Ontario's industrial decline and the need for a definitive industrial strategy and massive retraining programmes.

The Miller budget does nothing to help urban and farm families who are struggling desperately to survive the current recession. It, in fact, imposes greater hardship at a time of protracted recession and persistent inflation.

By curbing its excesses and selling off its interests in non-productive schemes such as Suncor and landbanking - more than $1 billion in wasteful investments - the government could have undertaken some major measures to help homeowners, farmers and small businesses while shaping an industrial strategy for the future.

It could have introduced a programme of interest rate relief for those individuals and companies in greatest need. It could have offered low-interest, long-term loans to help farmers stay on the land, and assist young farmers to buy into farm operations.

It could have invested in the development of alternate fuels - methanol and peat, for example - to reduce our dependence on off-shore energy.

It could have increased spending to stimulate research and development to create jobs for the future. Greater investment could also have been made in job retraining for skilled jobs which are available.

A start could have been made by abolishing the government's policy secretariats in the areas of Justice, Social Development and Resource Development in favour of a Ministry of Science, Technology and Productivity.

The government could have done all of this, without the need to broaden the retail sales tax base.

Instead, we have the Miller budget, a shameful document that taxes children and the poor to pay for Suncor.

Federation of Ontario Naturalists

Since the arrival of European man in North America, a few birds have taken readily to our structures to improve their habitat. One of these is the barn swallow, the fork-tailed swallow which swoops and zooms around a homestead to capture insects on the wing. Originally restricted to rock crevices and overhanging cliffs, these swallows have made good use of barns and garages as supports for their mud and grass nests. Some have even been seen nesting on slow moving boats and trains, which must surely be unique to this species.

Sometimes, however, barn swallows insist on nesting in locations that are inconvenient to the homeowner, or where their droppings create a nuisance. Often people who would like a pair of chattering swallows as a neighbour have trouble attracting the birds to nest. Now a naturalist from Del Rio, Texas has come up with a shelf design which seems to serve the demanding specifications of these flying flytraps, and should help a pair of swallows find a home where it suits you best.

The shelf itself is simple - a piece of wood 6 to 8 inches square with a 2 inch wooden rim all around. The secret seems to be its location, close to an eave or ceiling with only two inches gap left above the rim. This narrow gap discourages other competitors such as the house sparrow, and the shelf allows the swallows to build their lining of soft grasses directly inside, rather than building the usual mud frame.

Two other factors are important. If you can, place the shelf on the south side of a building, at least eight feet from the ground. And keep it at least three feet away from any posts or lattices that could be climbed by a cat or other predator.

According to the Audubon Encyclopedia of Birds, swallows have more than

SECOND CLASS MAIL REGISTRATION NO. 0936

Co-operative Education:

A new program is showing twenty grade nine students that the work place and the classroom are not necessarily two different worlds.

For David Hulbig, a day of school may consist of mopping floors or cutting grass. Danny Hayes, meanwhile, could be sorting letters in Minden or delivering mail on Rural Route One. They're both part of the co-operative education program at Haliburton High, and very glad to be finding that the work place and the class room don't have to be worlds apart.

Hulbig and Hayes are only two of twenty grade nine students at Haliburton High School who are receiving an education in the work force as well as the class room this year. They'll each spend a total of 50 days at placements with 19 different employers in Minden and Haliburton, tying together work experience with class room time spent in courses on life skills and attitudes to work. Judging from the response of teachers, students and employers, the method has met with huge success.

Co-operative education programs have been in existence all over the province for some time, but for HHSS this is the inaugural year. It began in March of last year, when the Haliburton Board of Education approached Haliburton High teacher John Fitzgerald and asked him to come up with some ideas for the program. Fitzgerald's one year sabbatical became a long and hard-thought investigation into the potential of combining a standard class room education with work experience. Last November his efforts were realized with the start of the first student placement.

Fitzgerald describes the basic aim of the placements as an alternative to a strictly academic education. "Essentially we want to provide students with the opportunity to learn general work skills and attitude skills. We're giving them an idea of what it's like to get up every morning and go to work," Fitzgerald explains. The students began the year with one day placements that have gradually increased their working life to wind up with three straight weeks on the job this month. Next year in tenth grade they'll take on another 50 days work while continuing with standard academic fare in school.

Raises questions

The experience of the work place raises a number of questions back in the class room, and Fitzgerald feels the program presents an effective interplay between the two. "We're asking questions like, 'How do I take direction,' and 'How do I get along with superiors and co-workers?' We're using the community as a 'lab' for the things we're studying in class and then putting them back into practice on the job."

Studies in life skills include skills such as personal financing, as well students are looking at banking, chequing, borrowing and taxation in addition to examining their experience at work.

David Hulbig: "I'm not one for sitting behind a desk."

John Fitzgerald: "You can't learn when you're not happy, and not everyone is happy all the time."

Danny Hayes: "The teachers have done a fantastic job, both in the classroom and in getting the kids ready for work."

Talking to students involved in the program, one hears an enthusiastic response to both the program and the teachers. Says David Hulbig, whose placement as a maintenance worker at Hyland Crest Senior Citizens Home has led him to a full time summer job. "When it comes to getting a job, experience can be a lot more valuable than money. As far as I'm concerned, every school should offer this kind of program. It gives the students a lot more education."

Hulbig's work at the Home has taken in every aspect of maintenance at the complex. "I've worked all over the building, doing everything from washing dishes to mopping floors," Hulbig explains as he squeezes out a mop in preparation for an assault on the garbage room floor. "Right now I'm cutting grass, collecting garbage, taking inventory and checking the fire equipment to make sure it's up to date."

Hulbig loves the pace of his work at Hyland Crest. "I'm just not one for sitting behind a desk," he confides. "I have to be always on my toes." As for the opportunity the job provides for the future, Hulbig is happily optimistic. "I've got a good thing going here. I'll be working through the summer and I'm aiming for a full time job eventually," he says.

David likes working with people, especially the seniors at the home, and his enjoyment attests to the effectiveness of the work that goes into matching students to jobs. Says Fitzgerald, "Initially we try to find out what a kid is interested in, and then we try to match them individually with employers." Fitzgerald feels the success rate of placements has been exceptional. Of the twenty students he's helped to find work this year, he's had to change placements for only three.

Placements cover a wide range of businesses, from Mabel's Cut 'n' Curls in Minden to Haliburton Machines and Manufacture in Haliburton. The students receive no pay for their work, and employers contribute in turn by providing evaluations of a students' performance on the job. In addition the three teachers of the program visit students on the job to observe them in the work place. The students' working life begins in November with four days' work. They then spend one and a half weeks on the job in December and again in March. In April students work two straight weeks and wind up the program in May with the three week placement. Then it's back to the class room for year-end exams.

Holidays end with such mixed emotions when you live in the Highlands. Although the time goes by far too swiftly when you are enjoying the rest and the weather is so fantastic, it is always so nice to get home. Part of the benefit of getting away is the appreciation it gives you of what we have right here at home.

We arrived back just in time to make last minute preparations for the long weekend rush -- and a busy weekend it was. Many operators had reported advance bookings were down but in spite of the weather most filled up with last minute visitors and other businesses we have talked with so far were pleased with the traffic.

It would appear from most indications that we can look forward to this trend. A large portion of the public is becoming reluctant to commit themselves by booking well in advance but when the time comes they are still packing the car and heading our way. As a result many resorts are booked heavily for the early part of the summer with many vacancies still remaining for the late summer and fall.

The weekend marked the official opening of the park in Haliburton Village which is bound to be a major asset in attracting visitors for many years into the future. Tributes were paid to the generosity of Rex Boice, the Hodgson family, Jim Elstone, and the former Ministry of Culture and Recreation who made it possible for Dysart to provide this facility without using municipal funds.

The ceremonies were dampened by rain but an enthusiastic crowd endured the weather to hear the opening dedications accompanied by support from the Haliburton Legion Pipe Band, The Senior Elementary School Choir and the Guild of Fine Arts Choir.

The Guild Choral Society incidentally is sponsoring an evening on Sunday, May 30th at the Minden United Church commencing at 7:00 p.m. featuring the Trinity United Church Choir from Peterborough. The Minden United Church is celebrating 120 years of serving this community and have published an excellent historical booklet about their roots and development. It is available at the Church for $1.25.

CAUSE study in Minden

The Minden Business Improvement Area board has been successful in obtaining a volunteer program offered by the Ontario Association of Architects for the village. The program is called CAUSE and the team of experts will be formulating recommendations to solve some of the problems of the community and improve its viability.

Anyone interested in this project should be anxious to attend both their introductory meeting on Thursday, May 27 at the Minden Community Centre from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. and their presentation meeting on Monday, May 31 at 10:30 a.m. at the Minden Council Chambers.

This is anticipated to be the first of a number of very positive steps to be made by the Minden B.I.A. and we look forward to some bright new days ahead for Minden.

Chamber expands this week

The new addition for the Chamber office is scheduled to be moved into place this week. Prentice Roads will move the 12' x 32' portable building from Stanhope to the Chamber location at Minden and attach it to the south wall of the existing building. Once in place the entire face of the building will be painted and spruced up for the coming season. The centre will have expanded capacity to adequately display information and brochures of the members, and we urge you to make use of the service.

The centre is presently open Monday to Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will be open Sundays as well commencing June 27.

The Caboose information centre in Haliburton also opened this weekend and they are anxious to obtain brochures for distribution. That centre is maintained by the municipality of Dysart but they are prepared to accept material from businesses in other municipalities at no charge. The Caboose is open weekends only until June 27 and following that seven days a week.

Convention show

The Tourist and Convention Bureau will be promoting the Highlands this Wednesday at a "Marketplace" show at the Holiday Inn in Toronto. About 1,000 meeting planners have been invited to attend and discuss facilities in the various areas that will be represented. This is the first show of this kind that our new Bureau has participated in and we look forward to 3 or 4 such presentations a year in various centres.

The bureau is also planning a familiarization show for next fall to enlighten many of our residents on the meeting facilities that we do have in the County.

Lutterworth liquor vote likely on 1982 ballots

Lutterworth township may soon go "wet" if the municipal council can iron out problems with a plebiscite that will allow the sale of alcoholic beverages in the township.

The municipality first circulated a plebiscite on the issue in conjunction with municipal elections in 1978, but according to Lutterworth councillors, the question suggested by the Liquor Licensing Board for the vote did not apply to the three businesses in the township which are eligible for licences, and as a result the affirmative vote received was invalid.

Under the Liquor Licensing Act, at least 60% of voters must indicate support for the sale of alcohol in the township before licences will be issued. According to Lutterworth Clerk-Treasurer Wayne Wood, the township received well over the necessary 60% in the last vote.

The 1978 plebiscite named hotels and resorts as potential sites for the sale of liquor, but both the Wagon Wheel Motel and the Forest Echo Motel could not qualify as such under the Liquor Licensing Act, because accommodation at the two establishments is separate from the dining facilities. After talks with Fred Jennings of the Peterborough office of the Liquor Licensing Board, councillors are preparing a new plebiscite, which will name dining lounges as potential sites for the sale of liquor.

Government regulations, however, stipulate that a plebiscite on liquor licensing can only be held every three years. As a result Lutterworth council has had to wait for the 1982 election to include the vote on the municipal election ballot.

Praise for teachers

As he sorts envelopes into post boxes at the Minden Post Office Friday afternoon, Danny Hayes has nothing but praise for the program's three instructors, Fitzgerald, Bob Jackson and Patty Brydon. "The teachers have done a fantastic job," he emphasizes, "both in class and in getting kids set up for work. We couldn't have done it without their support and they deserve a lot of support from parents. If you put anything in the paper, it should be that," he says bluntly.

Danny's work at the post office involves sorting mail, cancelling it, preparing mailbags for the run to Lindsay and sometimes even riding Rural Route One. Much like fellow co-op student David Hulbig, Danny points out that work and academics have become inseparable parts of a whole. "You can't compare the class room to the work place really, because you're learning two different things. I think you need both; you'll need academics like basic math and English, but you'll also need to know about job applications and resumes as well."

Hayes likes the demands that go along with the job. "You're expected to work, and if you're not doing your job you'll be told. That's why we have the evaluation sheets, to help us really, not the employers." Fitzgerald concurs "A lot of the kids are learning that going to work is like going to school, it's a routine, there's a job to do and they're expected to do it. Except that at work they're treated like adults and they have adult responsibilities."

Employers happy

Fitzgerald says the employers are also pleased with their student workers. "The co-op program has been successful beyond what I thought it would be. The contribution of the community has been fantastic - every prospective employer we talked to went with us. They've worked with the students, talked to them, done evaluations, they've really done a fantastic job."

Although three students have dropped out of the program since last fall, Fitzgerald still feels it has made the difference in keeping many students in school. "A lot of self image is being helped by this program. Kids are realizing, 'Hey, I can do something and it's not solely related to school.' When school has been nothing but a put down for nine or ten years, that's a significant change in attitude," Fitzgerald maintains.

The co-op students have taken the work experience idea to its ultimate form by starting a company. SPEVOC, which stands for Special Vocational, the program from which most of the students come, was formed by the group in February to bring in cash through odd jobs. Says Fitzgerald, "We started SPEVOC this winter. It was in my mind because I felt it was important for us to see what cash flow is all about." When not involved with placements, co-op students do odd jobs in the community to bring money to the group. "One kid just put in a transmission for a fellow, and another two are training with a house cleaner. With SPEVOC we've paid some bills and made some money," Fitzgerald says.

In all, Fitzgerald feels the program has given students what they need most of all from an education: happiness. "You can't learn when you're not happy, and not everyone is happy all the time," he explains.

LCBO break in - man charged

Police have laid break, enter and theft charges against a Wilberforce area man following an incident at the Haliburton liquor store.

Stephen Elliott, 19, of Wilberforce was charged shortly after midnight Thursday morning.

Two constables were on patrol in the village when they heard the sound of breaking glass. Rushing to the LCBO store they saw that a side glass door has been broken and a number of liquor bottles had been piled outside the door. An individual was observed running from the scene and was apprehended by the police.

Elliott was also charged with the theft of a flag from the cenotaph in Haliburton.

Investigating officers were Dennis Potter and Jim Solway.

Shed entered

Police are investigating two break-ins which occurred during the past week in the Haliburton Village area.

A storage shed at the top of the Sky Slider ride in the village was broken into recently. Rider owner Steve Bowskill reported the crime

May 18.

According to police, the door to the shed had been kicked in and a fire extinguisher, first aid kit, an intercom phone and 12 posts were taken. The stolen merchandise was valued at $500 while the damage was estimated at $30.

Constable Al Bibby is the investigating officer.

enough hazards to cope with on their annual migrations to Argentina and in their endless search for insects. Barn swallows have been lost at sea, for example, when low-flying birds were struck by waves, and one was even killed by a golf ball over a golf course. A simple shelf is all that's needed to help out these attractive little birds, and to help keep your yard free of insects as well.

Vandals damage Head Lake park

Four days before the opening of the Head Lake Park, vandals caused what police describe as 'considerable damage' to the new facility in Haliburton.

According to police the damage took place sometime between 12 midnight and 7 o'clock Thursday morning. Vandals tore apart two flowerbeds throwing shrubs and patio stones into the river which cuts through the park. They also attempted to dismantle the stone fountain which is the centrepiece of the new park, stuffing the water system with debris in an attempt to plug it. Decorative stones were also pried loose and thrown into the fountain.

Workmen were able to repair most of the damage before the official park opening which took place Sunday afternoon.

The incident is currently being investigated by Constable Brian Dunham.

Black Bear car rally rolls this weekend

Rally enthusiasts from all over Quebec and Ontario are focusing their attention on 2:01 p.m. this Saturday. That's the precise moment when the first rally car will leave the Minden arena to kick off the annual Black Bear Rally.

Organizer Dan Samoyloff says this year's rally will take in 200 kilometres of dirt roads in Anson, Hindon and Oakley townships, 75 kilometres of which will be competitive stages of the day-long race. The rally is due to finish at 9 p.m. at the Wagon Wheel Motel in Lutterworth township.

Samoyloff is expecting 25 to 30 entrants in this year's event. The racers will come from both factory sponsored teams and private rally clubs, driving mostly Datsuns, Toyotas, Hondas and Mazdas.

The drivers will compete in three different classes in the race, the 1600 cc and over Production class, the under 1600 cc Production class and the Open class. The race qualifies for the Ontario Performance Rally Championship and the Eastern Canadian Rally Championship, and is being sponsored by the Maple Leaf Rally Club of Toronto.

All roads used in the rally are owned and maintained by the Ministry of Natural Resources, which has given its permission for the roads to be closed to the public for the event. The O.P.P. and Minden Ambulance crew will both be standing by in case of accidents during the race.

Registration and scrutining of competing cars will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Minden arena. Although the O.P.P. have prohibited racing on the Queen's Line this year, the first two legs of the rally will begin on the road known to rallyists as "Gull Feather", which runs north off the Vankoughnet Road at Clear Lake. Cars will then head back into Hindon township for the next three stages, into Sherbourne for stages five and six, and finally back to Hindon for the seventh and final stage of the race.

The action promises to be typically fast and furious.

Four advance to Regionals

Four athletes from Haliburton Highlands advanced to the regional track and field finals this Saturday at the Terry Fox Centre in Ottawa. The students placed in the top four in the Central Ontario Secondary School Association track and field finals held last week.

Marla McNaul took first place for Haliburton in the junior girls 400 metre race with a time of 1:01 even. Marilyn Walker tossed a shot put 877 metres to finish third in Midget girls' shot competition and Margie Newton placed second in the senior girls' high jump even with a leap of 160 cm.

Rob MacLeod of the midget boys made a qualifying showing in the boys' 400 metre hurdles, but because there is no event at the regional finals, MacLeod will not compete. Tim Davies vaulted 305 cm to take third place in the senior boys' pole vault competition.

The top five athletes in each event at the Regional finals will go on to the All Ontario Championships in Toronto the following Friday and Saturday.

$3700 contract awarded for Lutterworth dump study

Lutterworth township council has awarded a $3,700 contract to a Bracebridge consulting firm to carry out a hydrologist's study on the proposed site of the new dump in the township.

Councillors voted at a meeting May 20 to award the contract to d.j.m. Cambrian Planning Consultants, choosing the firm over Bishop and Wilson and Totten, Simms and Hubicki. According to Clerk-Treasurer

Wayne Hughes, Cambrian's plans for the study did not require use of municipal equipment and personnel to conduct soil tests at the site, while the two competing firms did.

Hughes said he expects the study to commence immediately. The report is due to be finished in four weeks.

The new site, located on crown land near the junction of the Ironmine and Davis Lake roads, is intended to replace the Davis Lake site, which is nearing capacity and is expected to be closed before the end of the year. Hughes said work on the new site can proceed as soon as Lutterworth's new zoning by-law is considered at Ontario Municipal Board hearings. According to Hughes, the hearing will probably be scheduled for a date no later than September.

The Ministry of Natural Resources has given its approval to a zoning change that will allow the township to establish a dump on the site. The Ministry of the Environment has also done preliminary hydrology studies on the site, and will consider the report made by Cambrian before giving final approval to the location.

Extra police on duty

Haliburton County's 26 man Ontario Provincial Police detachment was augmented by over 40 extra officers this past weekend in anticipation of a number of large gatherings expected in the area.

According to the police, the extra manpower had a positive effect and the rock concert Sunday at the arena was quiet. Police report that 44 liquor charges and two drug charges were laid at the concert.

"We attribute the high police visibility here and throughout the area as being the reason no major crimes or disturbances were experienced," the police spokesman commented.

Police were also concerned with the large number of motorcyclists who travelled through or stopped in Minden Saturday. Many of the cyclists wore insignia indicating they were members of several Toronto area motorcycle gangs.

Extra officers were drawn from throughout District Eight, including detachments in Apsley, Campbellford, Brighton, Cobourg and Lindsay, as well as district headquarters in Peterborough.

Srs., Guilford lead ladies softball league

The Haliburton County Ladies Softball League season opened May 17 with a number of old rivalries continuing and some surprises from last year's teams. The league opened with three games in the six team circuit.

Last year's rivalry between Haliburton and the Minden Seniors continued in one of the season openers. The two teams battled to an exciting play-off finish when the 1981 season came to a close and it looks like that spirit of competition is still alive. The score was close all night with the Seniors getting three runs in the seventh inning to take the game 10 - 8. The Haliburton team was held to three outs in the final frame to clinch the win for Minden. Rhonda Wilson hit a home run for the seniors. Anne Hewson and Nelda Cully shared the win for the Seniors while Pam Iles and Mariam Smith were the losing pitchers for Haliburton.

The Wilberforce entry this year showed a great deal of improvement over last year, but were still unable to defeat West Guilford in a game played in Wilberforce. The final score was 11 - 6. Bev Sisson and Michelle Rosenburg led the way for the Guilford entry with pitcher Joan McKay claiming the win. Cindy Ablett and Cheryl Riley turned in strong plate performances for Wilberforce. The losing pitcher was Gail Rowbottom.

The Minden Juniors split a pair of games during the opening week. Monday evening they downed Carnarvon 40 - 5 at the field in Minden. Andrea Burk and Cheryl Dillon shared the win for the Juniors.

Tuesday night the Juniors travelled to West Guilford where they encountered some strong opposition and lost by a 24 - 1 margin. Joan McKay was the winning pitcher for Guilford, with a strong game being played by Bev Sisson, Bethany Woods and Gail Teasdale for the winners.

The Minden Seniors, in new uniforms courtesy of Dixie Lee, were host to the Wilberforce team Tuesday and the visitors once again turned in a strong performance. The Seniors managed a 17 - 7 win. Barb Barnhart led the Seniors with a perfect 6 - 6 record at the plate. The Wilberforce team was led by Jo Olszewski and Chris Storey with a 3 - 4 record. The winning pitcher was Anne Hewson with Gail Rowbottom taking the loss.

The Haliburton team also defeated Carnarvon in another Tuesday game. No score is available.

The standings (after first week)

Minden Seniors	2	2	0	4
West Guilford	2	2	0	4
Minden Juniors	2	1	1	2
Haliburton	2	1	1	2

Dinner highlights seniors' week

Senior Citizens' Week is set to roll for another year. June 20 to 26 has been set aside for the festivities this year, and organizers at Hyland Crest are preparing to salute the contribution of seniors to this community with the twelfth annual "Over 70's" dinner and entertainment.

This year's banquet will be held Tuesday, June 22 at the Home. Organizers say the dinner has been such a huge success in the past that a repeat was inevitable. They are hoping this year's event will out-do all others.

The Annual "Over 70's" Dinner is open to all who are 70 years old or over, along with their spouses and/or escorts. The dinner will be sponsored by all the municipalities in the county and is presented by the staff of Hyland Crest along with the help of volunteers.

The dinner begins at 5:30, and Acting Administrator Olive Hamilton is asking anyone interested to contact her at the Home. It promises to be another enjoyable evening.

DON'T LET YOUR WEEKENDS GO UP IN SMOKE!

Propane is a wonderfully convenient fuel for cottagers, campers and backyard barbecuers. It's clean, quick and efficient for cooking, refrigeration and lighting. But, like all flammable materials, propane must be used with care. Did you know, for instance, that:

- ☐ Propane barbecues should never be used in an enclosed area.
- ☐ Propane cylinders must be stored outdoors and checked for safety every 10 years.
- ☐ A propane cylinder should always be moved or stored in an upright position.
- ☐ Propane cylinders must be located outside recreational vehicles or in a compartment that is gas-tight to the vehicle interior and ventilated directly to the outdoors.
- ☐ It is strongly recommended that propanefuelled refrigerators be cleaned and adjusted every year.

You'll find these safety facts and more in our free booklet. Mail the coupon today and get your copy. It's a great reference guide, and it will ensure that propane is always a helpmate rather than a hazard to you and your family.

Municipalities provide help for citizens

Today's column will describe the various forms of assistance provided by the municipalities of Haliburton County to those citizens with financial needs. The column will highlight the welfare situation in the Municipality of Dysart et al. The information has been provided by Derral Stamp, the welfare administrator of that municipality. It should be noted, however, that the various financial assistance programmes are available in all ten municipalities in the county.

The three major assistance programmes are: General Welfare Assistance, Supplementary Aid, and Special Assistance. The welfare administrator in each municipality determines the eligibility of prospective candidates for each programme. The administrator, who is directly responsible to his/her municipal council, assesses eligibility through conducting client interviews, completing a client needs test, and making a home visit. One factor involved in the needs test is an assessment of the client's ability to manage the funds. In some cases, an intermediary is appointed to administer the income for the client.

General Welfare Assistance (G.W.A.) is a short term income maintenance programme. It is designed to help those with no source of income due to illness, unemployment, or other misfortune, or whose income is below the level established by the province. If a G.W.A. request is approved, the candidate receives a bi-monthly payment, of an amount and duration governed by the circumstances of each case. Costs for O.H.I.P. and prescription drugs may also be covered under this programme.

The second major form of assistance, Supplementary Aid, is a programme designed for those individuals receiving government benefits such as the Family Benefits Allowance and Old Age Security. This assistance covers the cost of expenses such as transportation, dentures, eye glasses, wheelchairs and the like. The municipalities are encouraged by the province to develop their own policy regarding the implementation of this programme.

For example, in the Municipality of Dysart et al, candidates are asked to contribute, if possible, fifty per cent of the cost. In that municipality, approximately four to five individuals per month qualify for this aid. The cost-sharing arrangement for this programme is the same as that for G.W.A.

The third major programme, Special Assistance, is designed for individuals receiving G.W.A. or for individuals with a low income requiring funds for extraordinary expenses. This programme offers the same types of services offered by Supplementary Aid. The provincial government and the municipality each fund fifty per cent of the Special Assistance Programme.

The municipal welfare programmes provide financial assistance to cover the costs of homemaking and nursing care through V.O.N. An individual may secure a homemaker through the Home Care Programme of the public health unit for a limited time, and the municipality may continue to contribute to the costs when the Home Care Programme expires. This programme also has the same cost sharing arrangement as G.W.A.

Finally, there are three additional financial assistance programmes, which could be offered by the municipalities. In Dysart et al, subsidies to parents with children in a day care centre, and subsidies to foster parents having the care of children not within Children's Aid Society jurisdiction, are two programmes which have not been instigated as yet. The third programme, which provides financial assistance to nursing home residents with their per diem rates, has been employed infrequently in Dysart et al.

Bowlers open season

Over 60 members of the Minden Lawn Bowling Club attended the opening of the 1982 bowling season on Wednesday, May 19.

All those present enjoyed a social evening in the form of a wine and cheese party and took the opportunity to throw a few bowls to get in practice for the start of the schedule on Monday, May 24.

Helen Burton was the lucky winner of the door prize drawn by Ethel Sinclair.

Many of the members worked very hard prior to the opening refurbishing the interior of the building to make a bright and pleasant atmosphere for the Club activities.

Ron Stackhouse speaks at hockey banquet

How many goals has Ron Stackhouse scored? The NHL hockey player pondered this question from a Minden Minor Hockey player during the annual banquet Wednesday evening. "Well," the Pittsburgh Penguin player said, "in my eleven years in the National Hockey League, I've scored almost as many goals as Wayne Gretzky scored this year."

Fame doesn't come to all players who make it to the ranks of the NHL, like it has for Wayne Gretzky, but as Ron Stackhouse told the attentive audience, he has enjoyed his hockey experiences nonetheless. In particular, Stackhouse paid tribute to the minor hockey system. He noted that the coaches and managers gave of their time to help the youth of the community acquire the necessary hockey skills. "In some cases this training helped to open the doors to the big leagues. Those who were unable to move up hopefully enjoyed themselves and in participating, learned some sportsmanship."

Over 100 players, parents, coaches and league officials were on hand for the annual dinner. In addition to the popular guest speaker, awards were presented to the players. Each of the youngsters received a baseball style cap and a Minden Monarch crest on the front. Each of the coaches and managers received a booklet of Wintario tickets from the association as an expression of appreciation.

Also honoured was Shirley Walker who supplied The Times and the Haliburton County Echo with game reports throughout the season. (Her services were greatly appreciated by this newspaper.)

A new executive for the Minor Hockey Association was also chosen for the 1982-83 season. Mervin Barry was returned as the organization's president. Assisting will be

Jeff Campbell, vice president; Shirley Howe as secretary treasurer; and directors Gala Stamp, Jayne Heppleston, Neil Burk, Shirley Hie, Carl Hie, Bob Ackerblade, Dwight Thomas, Jõe Gentle, Albert Foster and Ron Buchannon.

Before the evening ended, Ron Stackhouse was offered an opportunity to take home a special souvenir from the dinner. In addition to gifts presented by the association, juvenile player Craig Coneybeare, feeling the hockey player had spent the evening landing out autographs, offered Stackhouse one of his own.

Hustlers open season

The Minden Rockcliffe Hustlers take to the field this Wednesday evening in the opening game of the Tri-County Baseball League. The local squad take on Lindsay Turbo in the first match of the season. Game time is 8 p.m.

The Hustlers will be playing in an eight team loop this season with four teams being fielded from Lindsay. Other entries include teams from Woodville, Bobcaygeon and Downeyville. Last year the league had six teams.

While many new faces will be back in the Hustlers' roster this year, coach Neil Burk will also be looking to at least six new players to carry the team.

Among the new members of the squad are Dave and Rick Hartwick, Barry Shaw, Tom Lytle, Mike Hatkoski and Dwight Fountain.

The team will have 16 players.

The league schedule will see two games per week with the Minden home games set for Wednesday night. Burk noted that the late start for the Minden games, 8 p.m., is necessary to give out of town teams an opportunity to reach the diamond in time for the game.

The opening is tonight (May 26) at the Minden diamond.

This weekend we're taking a closer look at downtown

What is a CAUSE study?

The Minden Business Improvement Area has invited the Ontario Association of Architects to carry out a CAUSE study in the core area of the community. Under the CAUSE program (the name stands for Community Assist for Urban Study Effort), a team of architects and architectural students will spend four days studying the community's problems and, in a final report, suggest solutions.

The team members donate their time for this project. The expenses are being paid for by the member merchants of the Minden B.I.A.

What will happen?

The team will arrive noon Thursday, May 27 at which time they will meet with members of the municipal council. During the afternoon they will be taken on a tour of Minden and area to familiarize them with the community. Thursday evening the B.I.A. will host an open house at the Minden Community Centre (NOTE: previous announcements indicated the meeting would take place at the library-cultural centre common room).

The general public is invited to attend to meet the architects and offer their opinions as to how the community's core could be improved.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday the architects will be on their own to "do their thing". They will be walking around the town, drawing sketches of what they see, taking photographs and talking with shoppers and merchants on the street.

Why should you be concerned?

A healthy and thriving business community is important to everyone in the municipality. The businesses of this community provide a source of employment for local citizens, funds for investment in the area and, when the community is progressive, an inviting climate for others thinking of relocating.

The members of the B.I.A. care about how the downtown area looks to residents and the visitor who is here for the first time. They want the core area to be an attractive and pleasant place to shop, a place that residents can be proud of and visitors will remember.

How can you help?

- on Friday or Saturday last week Minden and area residents received a questionnaire in the mail. The answers on these questionnaires will help the CAUSE team assess the community and its problems. If you haven't filled yours in, please do so and return it as quickly as possible. If you didn't receive one, the questionnaire is reprinted below.

- on Thursday (May 27) the B.I.A. will host an open house for the CAUSE team at the Minden Community Centre. (Please note that previous announcements said the meeting would be held at the library-cultural centre. The location has been changed to the Community Centre). An invitation has been extended to everyone in the area to attend to meet the team members. But, we want the evening to be more than a social gathering. We would like you to bring your ideas on downtown redevelopment, to discuss them with the team members. They will be interested in what you have to say as the information they gather at this meeting will form the basis of their own study of the community. The meeting will take place from 6 to 8 p.m. Light refreshments will be available. (If you are unable to attend, please put your thoughts on paper and send them to Minden B.I.A., Box 427, Minden, Ont.)

What about the results?

The team will deliver their findings and a written report at a meeting Monday, June 1, 10:30 a.m. at the Anson, Hindon and Minden municipal council chambers. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

NOTE

Don't forget the July 27 meeting with the CAUSE team has been moved from the library-cultural centre to the Community Centre. Join us between 6 and 8 p.m.

Questionnaire

The following questions were asked in a questionnaire circulated to Minden area residents. Space is limited here, so please use a blank piece of paper to record your answers, numbering them as indicated. Your response should be mailed to Minden B.I.A., Box 427, Minden, Ontario or dropped off at Mae's Country Mart; Northland Sales or The Times.

2. What appeals to you the least about shopping in downtown Minden.
3. What improvements would you suggest to make the downtown area more attractive? (Concerns may include such topics as parking, sidewalks, lighting or other matters you feel are important).
4. Do you shop in downtown Minden? (check one) ☐ regularly ☐ once in a while ☐ seldom.
5. Please add any further comments you may wish to make on downtown redevelopment or this study.

around the county town

by Yvonne Guida

We regret to announce that due to illness, Yvonne was unable to write her column this week. She is currently at Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay, undergoing tests. Yvonne had prepared an article about her Aunt, who is celebrating her 100th birthday, today.

Ida Maude Noice was born in Minden on May 26, 1882. She is one of eight children, one having died as a child. She had a sister Florence Winnifred, brothers Frederick Charles, John Albert, Arthur Edward, Walter Wilfred and William Henry, however only she and her brother Walter survive. She is the daughter of the late Edward and Mary Jane Noice (nee Welch).

Her father was a prosperous general merchant in Minden for many years, but the family moved to Toronto during the First World War. Ida attended school in Minden, as did her sister and brothers. After graduation she became a student at Whitby Ladies' College (which is now Trafalgar Castle School), and graduated in 1898. She then entered Ottawa General School of Nursing and graduated from the Lady Stanley Institute for trained nurses.

As a young woman, she was engaged to a doctor, but unfortunately he died, and she never married. In 1914 war was declared and her brother Walter enlisted in August, 1915. At one time Walter had been approached to join the Royal North West Mounted Police but instead he enlisted in the army.

He married Mavis Marshall in Winnipeg, Manitoba on February 1, 1916, and after having been married for only 26 days, he went overseas on February 26, 1916. He served first with the 10th Field Ambulance Corps and then with the 75th Battalion and participated in all the major battles, Ypres, Vimy Ridge, and the Somme, until he was badly wounded and had to be sent home via a hospital ship.

Meanwhile, Ida had joined the Army as a Lieutenant. Now there were four members of one family in the armed forces, Lieutenant Frederick Charles, Private William Henry, who was also wounded, Private Walter Wilfred and Ida. While serving as an army nurse, Ida developed a mastoid which was operated on, but she suffered the loss of hearing in one ear.

While overseas, the brothers had a very unexpected meeting at the Duchess of Connaught Red Cross Hospital at Taplow on the Astor Estate, on the Thames close to Maidenhead. Lieutenant Frederick Charles was Quartermaster of the hospital and he discovered both his brothers, Bill and Walter were patients in the hospital.

At the close of the war, Ida resigned from her army post and took up private nursing for many years until her retirement in 1956. She then moved back to Minden where she resided until 1970 when she suffered a stroke.

She is now confined to Sunnybrook Military Hospital in Toronto. It should be noted that Ida is one of the few, or may be the one remaining nurse living from the first world war.

People who know her, and they are many, love her for her gentleness, compassion and all the requisites which make up a fine nurse and equally fine woman. She is an inspiration to us all, and as she celebrates her 100th birthday, we say to her and to her brother in his 88th year, "God bless you both!"

We have Ruby Lewis in the hospital. Some say it's her heart, others say it's her middle.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McBrien took the service in the chapel Sunday night. Bob spoke on the different miracles Jesus performed. Ruth played. It was nice of them to come and take over for Rev. Burgess.

Watched two movies

Monday night which really were quite fine - "Lovely Bermuda" and the building of nearly eight hundred miles of road to take heavy equipment in to start building the Alaska pipe line.

Tuesday morning Rev. Miller took the service here. He took his text from the nineteenth Psalm. Mrs. Taylor came to play - a nice service by the way. Tuesday night is music night here at Hyland Crest. The Watson trio came and gave us of their best. They put up grand music, and know how to entertain. We always look forward, until they come again.

The men are mowing lawns, and cutting down the weeds. The nurses are digging up a garden, and planting flower seeds. And our ladies, bless their hearts, are making all kinds of things and parts - working much too hard by far, getting ready for the July bazaar.

Thursday afternoon the ladies from the Full Gospel

Lighthouse, Haliburton, served the tea party here, and did the job just fine. We thank you for coming, and giving of your time.

We have just received word of the passing of Mrs. Hie. Our deepest sympathy from the residents here, to the family, and relatives.

They are going to set up a gazebo, just out from our front door, where we can sit, read, or sleep - maybe even snore.

Mrs. Coburn and Fred Ballard came this Friday afternoon to entertain us for one hour, to play, and sing some tunes, Grace had to leave early to visit her dear sister in a nursing home in Lindsay. If Grace didn't come at all, we would surely miss her.

Praise and Thanks

For spring and autumn, sun and rain,
For blessedness of work filled days,
For flowering rose, and garnered grain,
Take Lord, my praise.
For fire light flickers through the gloom,
For love filled heart, and book filled room,
Accept our Thanks.

Minden W.I.

Mrs. B. Wood showed a film Lennard Island, from Haliburton County Public Library Service at the May 19 meeting of Minden Women's Institute. Seventeen members and one guest were present as Mrs. L. Cox, the new president conducted this meeting.

Only nine cards were sent by Convenor Mrs. W. Moore since the last meeting, so do let her know of people needing good wishes or for special occasions.

The yearly donation of $30 in lieu of School Fair Prizes is to be sent to Archie Stouffer Public School.

The ladies enjoyed viewing the fine exhibit of school art in the centre.

Mrs. C. Brown gave a brief report of the Victoria East District Annual May 11 at Burnt River.

Mrs. L. Cox made presentation of a small gift to Mrs. C. Brown (past president) and all joined in our thanks for her work in the past three years.

The Secretary is to write a letter of protest on the new Ontario Budget and especially on tax on food.

An Executive Meeting will be in the library Wednesday, June 2 at 7:30 p.m. to plan programmes.

All are to meet at the Post Office June 16 at 12 for a Pot Luck meeting at the Jim Grant's home with all bringing their own plate, cup, cutlery and a deck chair.

After the adjournment, a delicious lunch was served by the committee and social time followed. Winner of the Indian Dressed Doll donated by Yvonne Beaucage was won by Jeanne Sears, holding ticket no. 370.

A ladder attached to a boat has 19 rungs, with eight showing above water. Each night a tide comes in and the water rises 2 m (6 feet). When the tide comes in, how many rungs show above the water?

Answer: Eight rungs are showing. The boat would rise with the tide so that the same number of rungs would always be showing.

Remember kids - keep your bicycle in good running order by keeping the tires inflated with the right amount of air pressure, the chain in good repair, make sure your brakes are always working.

Tongue-twister: Try saying this in -a hurry? "The shoeshine shop sign shone."

Bye for now. Take it easy. God bless till next time.

CARD OF THANKS

Congratulations to all those in our Community who took the time to become involved with our "Trees for Canada" project. The outing which took place on May 1st, in ideal weather, was well attended, and the 2,000 trees allotted were planted in record time. We are particularly grateful to Mr. Gino Ziorjen, who not only supplied the planting site, but also treated everyone to a tasty lunch.

CARD OF THANKS

Also, thank you, Parents, for joining your children in this endeavour. The Ministry of Natural Resources kindly supplied all necessary equipment, and we certainly appreciated the coverage given us by The Times, who have always shown their interest in all events in our years' programme. We are expecting all pledges to exceed former years. All in all, the enthusiasm shown by all in attendance was appreciated and we wish to express our thanks to all concerned.
